TITLE SIX

INTEGRAL RISK ADMINISTRATION AND MANAGEMENT

The Bank's integral risk management process in its various businesses is framed within the guidelines designed by Senior Management, congruent with the Company's general management and administration guidelines approved by the Board of Directors.

The Bank has a defined policy for risk administration and management, for each of the risks (credit, market, liquidity, operational, legal, money laundering and terrorist financing), which is an integral part of the Risk Appetite Framework (MAR, by its acronym in Spanish).

This framework establishes the Bank's risk appetite and profile, and its relation to the business plan. Moreover, it establishes the early warnings system and maximum exposure limits as well as the risk governance structure which establishes corrective actions, follow-up actions in cases of deviations and strengthening actions in aspects that may require them.

CREDIT AND COUNTERPARTY RISK.

The Bank takes on credit risk in two fronts: traditional banking activity and treasury activity. Despite being independent areas, the nature of risk of insolvency of the counterparty is equal and, therefore, the criteria with which they are managed are the same.

The basic principles and rules to manage credit at the Bank are described in the credit manuals, conceived in principle for traditional banking activity, but whose grounds also cover the treasury activity.

The highest authority in credit matters is the Board of Directors, which guides the general policy and has the competence to approve credits with large exposure. Both in traditional banking operations and in treasury operations, the power to grant credit limits and loans depends on the amount, term and guarantees offered by the customer, and must abide by the allocation limits assigned to each level.

MARKET RISK.

The Board of Directors, as well as Senior Management, knows the risks implied by the Bank's activities in the monetary, exchange and capitals markets, and how these align with the Bank's general strategy.

Policies and limits to carry out treasury operations are studied and designed by Senior Management. In turn, the Code of Ethics establishes the regulations to be followed by the personnel involved in treasury activities.

LIQUIDITY RISK.

Senior Management monitors the Bank's liquidity situation and makes the necessary decisions considering the high quality liquid assets that must be maintained, the tolerance in handling liquidity or the minimum liquidity, the strategies for granting loans and for fund-raising, the policies for placing liquidity surpluses, changes in the products' characteristics and diversification of the sources of funds.

OPERATIONAL RISK.

Managing operational risk implies efficient management of the control mechanisms and adequate administrative structure to optimize the Bank's operations. The fundamental pillars of operative management are: organization and segregation of duties, training, definition of clear operational procedures, qualified human resource and an adequate technological and security platform to support the operation.

The Bank's management has established the policies, regulations and procedures that ensure business management within reasonable risk levels and allow the timely and systematic evaluation, verification, measurement, control and prevention of processes.

LEGAL RISK.

By defining and establishing the necessary procedures to adequately control legal risk of operations, we ensure that they comply with legal regulations, are properly documented.

The Bank respects copyrights and only uses legally acquired software and licenses. It does not allow the use of programs in its computers that have not been officially approved.

RISK OF MONEY LAUNDERING AND TERRORIST FINANCING.

The Bank manages the MLTF risk seeking to prevent it from being used to provide the appearance of legality to assets of illegal origin or from channeling funds intended for the execution of terrorist activities or the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Via the design of methodologies for segmentation, identification, measurement and control of the AMLCTF system objective criteria is defined for the determination of suspicious operations, as well as for the determination of which of the operations carried out by users are subject to consolidation, monitoring and analysis due to their unusual nature.
